Qualifications
The Kate Hillhouse Scholarship was established in 2008 in memory of Kate Hillhouse, a former president of the Native Plant Society of Texas. The amount of the scholarship is $2500.

The scholarship is to fund the education of a college student whose field of study is biology, botany, horticulture, landscape design, or related fields with an emphasis on Texas native plants or the ecosystems of Texas native plants. The emphasis on native plants is essential to qualifying for the scholarship.

Eligibility
The applicant must
- focus on Texas native plants or the ecosystems of Texas native plants
- be a current resident of Texas
- be planning a career that furthers the use of Texas native plants or their conservation
- be one of the following:
  - a sophomore at an accredited two-year college in Texas who has been accepted into a four-year institution for the 2019-2020 academic year
  - a junior in an accredited college or university in Texas
  - a senior in an accredited college or university in Texas who has been accepted into a graduate program for the 2019-2020 academic year

Additional Request
The scholarship recipient is requested to attend the Society’s annual Fall Symposium and present a report on activities during the year of the scholarship. Travel expenses will be reimbursed upon request.

Application
Application for the Kate Hillhouse Undergraduate Scholarship is made by sending
1) a completed application form
2) one copy of the current college transcript for each college/university attended (record of the last college semester should be on the transcript; unofficial transcripts are accepted, but the winner of the scholarship may be asked to submit the official transcript with seal)
3) one letter of recommendation from a professor advising or instructing the applicant (letter should address applicant’s academic abilities and intended career path). The letter of recommendation must be in an envelope sealed by the professor or emailed directly by the professor. Open letters will not be used.

Submit ALL application materials to state@npsot.org, or mail in one packet to
